

Measuring the Impact of Youth Work

with Skills Summary

It can be challenging and time consuming to demonstrate the positive impact of youth work on young people. Through NYCI's Skills Summary, youth workers and other practitioners can access reporting to help track the progress the young people in your service are making and measure the impact of the youth and community work you are running.

- ✓ Get quantitative data about young people's skill development.
- ✓ Measure the achievements and impact of your work for reporting and funding applications.
- ✓ Capture progress and track young people's skill development over time.
- ✓ Enhance your service: use reports to identify gaps in provision and plan ahead.
- ✓ The reports are anonymous and do not include any personal data but include information about skills and levels users have attempted

The value of your youth work: Young people develop a range of transferrable life skills through taking part in youth work, volunteering and other extracurricular activities. Skills Summary supports your organisation to monitor and communicate the value of these skills and the positive impact of your work.

So how do you start? Go to the Monitoring tab of your Skills Summary account and click on 'Track User Progress'!
